This very exciting new app enables buyers to bid on a wide range of items, from small work of art to great antiques. Buyers can browse through more than 30,000 items and search through them using keywords, descriptions, and pictures. If a buyer likes an item, they can bid on it. If the seller accepts a bid, an automatic email is sent to the buyer and the seller. The buyer can then log into the account on the Auctioneer website and deposit payment via credit card, wire transfer or an alternative payment mechanism. The company that makes the program states that a deal can close in an average of 24 hours. Buyer information is optional, but it can be extremely useful to prevent buyers from fraud. Auctioneer will automatically add buyers to their own private database. Any information about the buyer that is collected is stored in the private auction house database and never made public or sold to third parties. The Auctioneer program is free to use, and buyers are billed based on usage. Their minimum usage is $25 and is $50 for sellers, but they have also introduced a special offer for a lower $12.95 monthly fee for buyers. Here's what the company says: "There are thousands of web sites and auction houses online, which sell tens of millions of items every day. Most sellers know that it's not their sellers that are bidding on their listings, and when it's discovered, they are frustrated and upset, even angry. It's no wonder that we are seeing so many fraudulent web sites, auction houses and companies come online. They are all designed to take advantage of people's needs and their fears and generate money by luring buyers into purchasing items from them. The Auctioneer software provides tools for you to protect yourself from fraud and identify the
