Say I'm on my home network and I use DHCP for my server name. At home, my server's name is "server1", but if I move to the office, I get a new IP. I don't like this. There's no way to predict what the DHCP server will assign at any given time, so I get a different address, but the DNS will still resolve this name as "server1". How can I change the DNS settings so that it's going to now resolve "server1" to my desktop when I am at home, but "server2" when I am at the office? A: You could set up a pair of DNS A records, one pointing to your home server and the other pointing to your office server. You could have two sets of 'A' records for your DNS, one with the name of the home server, and the other with the name of the office server. Using the word 'A' in a DNS record's name means it will use UDP for queries and UDP port 53 for replies. Using that, and the idea that a DNS query is a first class TCP/IP request, you would be able to determine what server a client is currently connected to. So, when you're at home, you could set the 'A' record for "server1" to point to the home server and the 'A' record for "server2" to point to the office server. When you're at the office, you would have

Legendary Wizards is a 36 page Pathfinder Roleplaying Game class based supplementary adventure module for the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game published in October 2019 by N. Jolly, Cerise Herndon, and Hal Kennette. The module features new archetypes for the Mystic Marksman, Gunpowder Mage, Drake Maverick, and Master of the Arcane Arts, a Companion Guide, a new class: the Arcane Scholar, additional spells for existing classes, and 3 new Legendaries This module is intended to be a "Best Of" compilation of all the updates that we have been handing out over the last few years for the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game. It is the culmination of all of our efforts into the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game, such as the Mystic Marksman, Gunpowder Mage, and the Arcane Scholar archetypes, and it is designed to be an excellent beginner's level adventure and an excellent end game level adventure as well. The game mechanics were updated and streamlined to provide a solid and balanced experience for the new player and to provide a fantastic end game challenge for the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game veterans alike. The module is designed to be playable by anyone looking to get started with the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game, but it is intended to be a standard adventure for both the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Core Rules and the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Bestiary. As such, it takes full advantage of the mechanical changes that were added as part of the 10th Anniversary Supplement, but it will play identically to the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Core Rules and Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Bestiary. The module was written using high-level rules, but the vast majority of the content can be handled with the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Core Rules and the Pathfinder Roleplaying Game Bestiary, making this a great adventure for players of all levels!
