I have a windows form application that makes use of several text boxes and some other controls like treeview control. I want to move these controls to another form, or it could be to a group box. The idea is to give the user a simple drag and drop interface where they can move the controls around. How can I do this? Is there any open source code that can be downloaded? A: Thanks to some of the comments, I managed to track down a tutorial. The second answer is partially out of date. A: There are some books on the market that make this easy. The first one was part of my Microsoft MDB+ access book. b7e8fd5c8
