Elements is a beautiful program and is a good introduction to creative work in Photoshop. Use it to create images that you can then edit, resize, and print or that you can even enter in contests and exhibitions. I haven't used ASP.NET for years. Q: Display height as percentage of height of parent div in Chrome - overflow hidden not working I have a container div which has a style of 'display: table'. Inside of this div are three rows of content. On the top row I have two input boxes with styles of 'min-height: 20px; height:20px;'. On the second row I have two more input boxes with styles of 'min-height: 40px; height:40px;'. On the third row I have an img and a p, both with styles of 'min-height: 100%; height: 100%;'. In firefox, chrome, and IE10 all works fine. When I run this test in Google Chrome I get the following error: Unable to get value of attribute 'height' on element All other style properties display correctly in Chrome. My Chrome version is 13.0.782.112 beta, mSafari is 5.1.7. A: I think this should be a bug in chrome.
