In the present study, the expression and distribution of the matrix metalloproteinases, MMP-2, MMP-9 and TIMP-1 were analyzed in the palatal mesenchyme and epithelium of rat embryos at 3-day intervals from E9 to E17. In the palatal mesenchyme, MMP-2 was found to be expressed at E9 and MMP-9 at E14. MMP-2 was localized mainly in the basolateral membrane of the palatal mesenchyme cells, and MMP-9 was localized on the apical side of the epithelium. Immunofluorescence double staining demonstrated that MMP-9 was mainly expressed in the stratified epithelium, whereas MMP-2 was expressed throughout the thickness of the palatal mesenchyme. In addition, Western blot analysis using a specific antibody against MMP-9 showed that the molecular weight of MMP-9 was 65 kD. In the palatal epithelium, MMP-9 was expressed from E14 and TIMP-1 was expressed mainly in the basal cells of the epithelium from E13-E16. At E14, MMP-9 was expressed on the apical side of the epithelium; at E15, MMP-9 was expressed on the basal and lateral sides of the epithelium. These findings suggest that the expression of MMPs is regulated spatially and temporally in the palatal mesenchyme and epithelium.

Q: How to use a tkinter window for a python application using multiprocessing I am trying to start a small tkinter window from another python script that is running the multiprocessing library. I have confirmed that multiprocessing works, as seen by the print statements. The tkinter window runs, but nothing is displayed. I am running python2.7 and tk8.5. Here is my code: from multiprocessing import Process from tkinter import * def create_window(): app = Tk() app

Groundwater in a semi-arid region of California, USA, is contaminated with high levels of arsenic (As), which has a carcinogenic potential. Total bacteria and indigenous As-oxidizing bacteria (iAOB), which are known for their ability to oxidize and immobilize As, were investigated in groundwater. Based on the gene copy number (GCN) quantification, the concentrations of total bacteria ranged from 10(4) to 10(7) GCN L(-1) and total As from 10 to 100 µg L(-1), with peaks of up to 8,000 µg L(-1) and 7,000 µg L(-1), respectively. Samples from three depths showed an increase of total As with the depth, suggesting that the groundwater movement has been the major source of As contamination in the area. The iAOB genera were also related to As concentration, with the As-oxidizing species of the nitrate-reducing family NKB1-9 also identified. The presence of the NKB1-9 in the groundwater was further verified by the (15)N-addition experiment, which showed an increase of the (15)N(2) isotope at a ratio of 0.66 after 36 h of incubation, suggesting the participation of the NKB1-9 in As oxidation under aerobic conditions. The ratio of (15)N(2)/(14)N(2) decreased after 48 h of incubation, showing that the iAOB NKB1-9 was not able to oxidize As under anaerobic conditions. The results of this study showed that the changes in the iAOB of the NKB1-9 might be a potential remediation technique for As contamination in groundwater.
