Microsoft Excel is a desktop spreadsheet application. It was developed and released in 1985 by Microsoft as a front-end to the BASIC Worksheets Programming System (BWS) for use with its IBM PC-compatible personal computers. It is also available on Microsoft Windows for use on non-PC-compatible systems. Microsoft Windows is a family of operating systems released by Microsoft. It is used on a wide variety of computers and mobile devices. Windows is designed to work with software developed for Microsoft's previous operating system, DOS, and consists of the core operating system kernel and a set of application programs that are bundled with the operating system, known as the Windows application programming interface (API). Operating system: Windows is a general-purpose operating system for personal computers that is successor to DOS. The Windows NT-based family of operating systems are either 32- or 64-bit versions of Windows. These versions replaced the Windows 9x-based family and include the Windows XP and Windows 7 operating systems. Quantum Navigator is a business management software for PCs. Its early history is traced to 1994, when a small group of investors (around six) purchased enough stock to acquire a majority of the company, enabling it to survive in the dot-com bust. The company remained an independent entity until June 2000, when it was sold to IDC. After two more acquisitions (by Invisio and Metricom), Quantum announced that it would be folded into Siebel Systems. Its current form was announced in May 2006 as a merger between Quantum and Siebel. Siebel is an American computer software company headquartered in Chicago, Illinois. It was founded in 1985 as MindTools, a provider of a business management product called the Siebel System. It is a Microsoft Gold Certified Partner (2006) and a SAP Certified Application Consultant (2008). The company is considered to be the pioneer of enterprise resource planning (ERP) software and has an ERP product named SAP for small and medium-sized enterprises. SAP is a German software company based in Walldorf, Germany. It is the developer of enterprise software primarily for business and finance.
