"Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides. Early sonographic detection of a perforated appendix: two cases. The authors report two cases of appendicitis during the fetal period that were detected by prenatal sonographic examination. The presence of a perforated appendix is a life-threatening condition for the fetus. An appendectomy at birth should be performed in these cases. In this article, the importance of prenatal sonographic findings, especially the presence of a perforated appendix, is stressed. The prenatal discovery of a perforated appendix helps to maintain an ethical decision on the continuation of pregnancy and allows a planned definitive operation. Famitsu has gone up with a preview of Ryse's upcoming new character "Levity", offering a look at some of the new moves in the game. "Levity" (shown above on the left side of the image) is described as an all female soldier who takes offense to the massacre of refugees by Mercer's soldiers. She'll be a member of the Eden's Gate mercenary force, and appears to be an image of unarmed strength. She'll have "Acrobatics" and "Mechanics" abilities, allowing her to perform two of the four combat styles that are featured in Ryse: "Cyber Forensics", "Gauntlets of Death", "Gatling", and "Ring of Death". Ryse comes out for Xbox One, Xbox 360, PC, PS3, and PS4 on May 15th in Japan. It will hit North America and Europe on June 13th, 2015. In Japan, the game will be titled "Assault Operations". Thanks, Famitsu.

Q: sqlite3: Error in Update Statement in Python I have tried to update certain columns of a table but I always get an error in the "Statement" given here SQLite database connection and update of data it says: "Error: no such column: 2010" But this table does have a column called 2010. Here is my code: sqlite3.connect("database.db") con = sqlite3.connect("database.db") cur = con.cursor() cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database") for row in cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database"): print(row) cur.execute("UPDATE database SET name = '"+row["name"]+"' WHERE 2010 = '2010'") #sqlite3.commit() cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database") Is this a problem with my data base connection or am I using the wrong syntax? A: You are using a single-quoted string, meaning that the backslash is interpreted as an escape character, hence the Error: no such column: 2010. The correct way to use single-quoted strings is to enclose your value in single quotes: cur.execute("UPDATE database SET name = '"+row["name"]+"'")
