The evidence in this case indicates that the Midnight Sun property was used as a salvage yard by the owner's son from 1989 to 1994. The son stored vehicles and auto parts on the property, which was zoned Industrial Use. When the son sold the business to his brother, the property was still being used as a salvage yard. The son continued to repair vehicles that were stored on the property, but he did not remove any parts to his own house. The Board of Adjustment may consider all relevant evidence presented. Smith v. Board of Adjustment of City of Dallas, 405 S.W.2d 310, 314 (Tex. Civ.App.--Dallas 1966, no writ). The property owner did not present any evidence to refute the evidence put forward by the City that Midnight Oil was used as a junkyard. We find the Board of Adjustment did not abuse its discretion in finding Midnight Oil's use of the property as a junkyard not inconsistent with the nonconforming use of auto repair and restoration as established by the 1980 ordinance. When Tellez purchased the property at 208 Midnight Sun in June 1988, he understood that the property was zoned Industrial Use. When Tellez stored salvaged auto parts on the property, business continued as usual. Tellez testified that he used the Midnight Sun property when he needed a place to have cars parked and stored. Often, Tellez would get new cars to repair, and put the cars on the property. The cars would be moved off the property later, after they had been repaired.
