January.1. the Small Pearl Dun,dubbed over with yellow silk, an under wing from starling's feather, a little straw from underneath the wing, a brown cock's hackle, and a little of the tail feather of the same. 2. January.Ages ago, there lived in Flanders, a good old servant girl, who was thirty years old, and had served more than two score of her neighbours. One day it so happened, she was placed in a great hurry by the master to make the bed ready, and to put some corn in the bird-cage. She put on her apron, took some clean feathers, tied them round her head, and made some red, brown, and light brown patches on the floor. A little after, a cloud covered the sun; the feathers turned black. The young gentleman immediately asked, whether the girl was as ugly as a black cat, now. The servant was much afflicted, but had the courage to deny, that she was so, and was, moreover, not much afraid of the smell of the black cat. "What!" exclaimed the gentleman, "are you the devil in woman's form? I am as handsome as you may be yourself." On this, the servant became thoroughly ashamed of her conduct, and ran away, running to another part of the house, where her mistress was, and besought her that she might be taken to the cellar. "I cannot stand the smell," replied she. "But," the servant remarked, "that I am neither a devil nor a cat, I was never a mile from you; I have only made some patches on the floor; and the ashes that you have on the hearth will be best for your fright."
