There's a lot going on in Adobe Photoshop Elements 15, and the interface is likelier to attract users searching for a good image editor plus a full suite than for someone wanting to use Elements as a stand-alone for casual editing. As with the previous release, you can use Photoshop Elements with a USB keyboard and mouse, a wireless mouse or the Apple Pencil. If you have an Android device, you can use its Touch or Lightning-port keyboard as well. You can also use your iPhone with its keyboard or along with the Apple Pencil. Unlike the rest of my workflow, I felt that the AI edits on Lightroom were very impressive. They were definitely what I was looking for to help me get out of the 9-7 rut, of wanting to go home to a plate of brownies at 7:00 PM (yes, it's been like that for the last 9 years) — 1) to get that perfect shot, but 2) also to spend more time with the kids in the more hectic after-school hours. The AI edits were a welcome distraction, that actually helped me work faster when creating images. For example, the Color Picker had a lower left yellow slider that you could control to change the level of Shadows to highlight in the image. I used this slider before and I didn't remember it, but I tried using it on the images I received from my clients and found it to be a good trick. I did find that the AI on some areas was a bit unnatural, however, including the Levels adjustment, the Color Curves, the Histogram, and the Exposure.] AI Auto is still proud to be a part of the Adobe ecosystem (a bit like the other apps in my daily workflow). For this Dummies' Review, AI Auto was fantastic, though again, some of the most essential features, including Smart Sharpen, Easy Portrait, and Artistic Effects, were not as useful as the AI's ability to separate and remove unwanted elements from the image, especially by detecting and removing objects, such as people, from the frame.

Why invest in one particular brand of photography gadgets when you can have all of them in a single software? For instance, if you are a holidaymaker yourself, you may need to grab pictures of the beach, pictures of the meadow, and pictures of the shoreline, and take them all to post on social media. You will not only waste your time but also use up more electric power. On the other hand, if you buy the memory card off the market, you will have to get another one as you use the first one up. So, there is an actual need for the third-party surveillance software. You will not be able to take the pictures with your camera if there is no memory card.
